GIO: TORRIANO

TO THEIR

Moſt Honoured Friend,

Mr. JAMES STANIER,

MERCHANT IN LONDON.

SIR.

THE great Care and Pains which Sig.r GIO. TORRIANO hath taken in ſetting forth the following Work, hath juſtly entitled him to a Right of making his particular Dedication thereof, which he hath done, To the Right Worſhipful Company of the Turky Merchants, whereof you are a worthy Member: But the intereſt we have in the Copy (as from the time of our purchaſe of it, we ever intended) we here moſt humbly offer to YOUR SELF. For to whom can we more fitly preſent a Dictionary of a Foreign, and eſpecially the ITALIAN Tongue, than to YOU, by whoſe favours and ready compliance, at all times, with our Occaſions, our affairs have had their Foundation, and are ſtill carried on in Foreign Parts, but principally in THAT COUNTRY.

SIR, This Volume would ſwell to too big a bulk, if this Epiſtle did contain but the Catalogue of the Obligations, which in the ſeries of ſeveral years YOU have heaped upon us; the ſence whereof hath hitherto been confin'd within the bounds of our own Breaſts. We beſeech you give us now leave to make Publication of them to all the World, and to be ſo juſt as to endeavour, that not only in ENGLAND, but in the PARTS BEYOND SEA, where your Correſpondents have daily experience of our Engagements to YOU, there may be perpetual Monuments of our acknowledgments of them; and that our Gratitude may travel as far as the uſe of this Book will carry it. We confeſs theſe are but mean returns for ſo great Courteſies, but being the effects of our grateful diſpoſitions and reſpects, we hope may find acceptance with you, which is only aimed at in this DEDICATION, By

Your moſt Humble and

Moſt Reſpectful Servants,

John Martin.

THE

PREFACE.

WHen the Rareties of Italy (that Paradise of Art and Nature, that Academy and Garden of the World) do daily call so many of the English Nation, and Foreigners from all parts into it ; when its excellent Books do travel into all Nations, and find Universal Esteem ; and when all Merchants that traffick into the Levant, must Trade by that Language, it would be superfluous for me, by a studied Discourse, to invite any to the Learning thereof. And the use of a Dictionary, in order to its attaining, is so obvious to all Understandings, that it would be impertinent to demonstrate its Necessity. I shall therefore only give the Peruser an Account, in short, of this present Edition.

In the Year 1611. John Florio set forth a second Edition of his Italian and English Dictionary ; which, for Variety of Words, was far more Copious than any extant in the World at that time. This, notwithstanding, being defective, and other Dictionaries and Italian Authors coming to his Hands, he collected out of them an Addition of many Thousand Words and Phrases, relating to Arts, Sciences, and Exercises ; intending (if he had lived) a third Edition ; which he left behind him in a very fair Manuscript, perfected, and ready for the Press.

This Manuscript I have diligently perused, and in very many places supplied, out of the generally approved Dictionary of the Academici della Crusca, and several others, that have been set forth since his Death. I have likewise much corrected the English Interpretations, and (where there was cause) reduced them to their genuine Sense, as they are now used in these Modern Times.

There wanted yet a Dictionary, English and Italian ; which I have compiled by my own Industry, and added to it several Proverbs and Instructions for the Learning of the Language : So that I question not, but now this will be the most compleat Italian-English Dictionary that ever yet hath been published ; and that all such as shall apply themselves to the Study of this Noble Tongue, will find in it all necessary Helps, and expected Satisfaction. For my own part, I shall account these my Labours well employed, if they shall be accepted by the English Nation ; for whose Service I have spent the greatest part of my Time, and to whom I shall perpetually be,

A most Humble, and

Devoted Servant,

Gio. Torriano.

An Advertisement.

WHeresoever this Asterism [] is placed before any word, it signifies, either that all such Words are not to be found in Mr.* Florio's last Edition of his Dictionary, or that there is an Alteration and Addition in their Interpretations. But these Asterisms (by Over-sight) in some whole Letters, and very many places, are omitted: Of which, the Reader is desired to take notice, and to judge of the Additions in this Dictionary, as upon Perusal he shall find just Cause and Reason.
